FOR INTELLECTUAL IDEAL MEANENY ON THE STAND

It was the consensus of opinion of those delegates to the second Pan-Amer- session of the Brown legislative comican Scientific Congress who spoke yesterday afternoon at the general as- abolishment of the Court House Board, Latin Americans in the auditorium of squarely up to the Board of Estimate. the Horace Mann School that true Pan- will be made to the Legislature. Americanism must be cemented by in-tellectual rather than commercial, po-litical and sentimental interests of the countries of North, South and Central President Nicholas Murray Butier paved the way for this expression of opinion in his welcome to the delegates to Columbia after they had spent most of the day in a tour of the city in about after private automobiles. The only barriers to unity, solidarity and peace that remain to be conquered, said President House Board were present while testimony was being taken.

In what may prove to be the last of his public utterances as a member of the city administration, President McAneny told the committee he did not see how the Legislature could possibly help the municipality out of the difficulties which it faces in the court house proposition. Like Mayor Mitchel and Comptroller remain to be conquered, said President Like Mayor Mitchel and Comptroller Butler, are lack of knowledge, lack of Prendergast, he asserted that were the contact and lack of understanding and appreciation. And it is the universities, administration the officials would keep appreciation. And it is the universities.

he added, that must break down these barriers to the realization of these aspirations.

The head of the Argentine delegation Dr. Ernesto Quesada, a member of the faculty of philosophy and letters of the National University of Buenos Ayres and professor in the University of La Plata, said frankly that for about a quarter of a century efforts toward Pan-Americanism have constituted a playful game of hide and seek, innocuous conferences and ornamental oratory and sentimentalism. On the other hand, he argued. Pan-Americanism is an intellectual product and must be based on an intellectual getting together. It is made up of historical and geographical principles intimately interwoven and its exponents and disseminators ought to be the universities.

Similar sentiments were voiced by Dr.

Similar sentiments were voiced by Dr.

between Latin America and North America, and Dr. Rodrigo Octavio, pro-fessor of international law in the Uni-

Europe.

Ex-Mayor Seth Low, who was called upon by President Butler to speak for New York city, "the commercial and intellectual capital of the nation," said he believed commerce one of the greatest agents toward friendship between nations, but at the same time he believed that it is the preeminent domain of science and of the principles of learning to learn the common interests which afscience and of the principles of learning to learn the common interests which af-

Provost Smith Commends Action Following Lifson's Death in Bowl Fight.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 13.—Interclass fights at the University of Pennsylva-nia are at an end for all time. Their discontinuance was decided upon to-day by the senior, Junior and freshman classes, following similar action by the sophomores last night. Scarcely a stu-dent among the 8,000 enrolled favors retention of such class contests as the bowl fight which resulted in the death of William L. Lifson and injuries to more than a score of sophomores and

It is the unanimous feeling of the It is the unanimous feeling of the undergraduates and authorities that the university has outgrown underclass fights. The senior class epitomized student sentiment in a resolution declaring that "the senior class, believing that the present system of underclass fights has passed the stage of its usefulness, is strongly in favor of the abolition of all forms of these contests."

Provost Smith commended their action. "The trustees and faculties of the University of Pennsylvania view

Plans for the establishment of a cen-tral court to handle cases of violations of traffic ordinances will be presented ilar reference to the treatment of ed violations.
According to Magistrate McAdoo about According to Magistrate McAdoo about 20,000 persons are injured in New York city yearly by traffic. A reasonable uniformity in the handling of traffic violators under one Magistrate to be there the year round who would be able to pick out old offenders and mete a more firm, just and impartial administration of the law, he thinks, would tend to lessen the number of casualties consequent on traffic violations. At present such cases are tried by the various thirty-eight Magistrates of the city.

The idea is in successful operation abroad and in Chicago. In view of the Mayor's suggestion for economy, the officers probably will be drafted from the other courts.
